Working with groups

This one day workshop is designed to enhance facilitation skills, and skills in managing and running groups.

The overall purpose of the workshop is to enable participants to develop confidence in their ability to run groups – by understanding how to give purpose and direction to the group and how to enable members to participate and interact effectively with one another.

The workshop is interactive – using case studies, some role playing and other small group activities.

Potential participants

The training is offered to anyone working with, or facilitating, groups or workplace teams. It will also be of interest to anyone working with patient, community or voluntary groups.

Date of course

15 January 2007

Venue

Grosvenor House Conference and Training Centre, Belfast

Facilitators

Yvonne Bostock

Yvonne has a background in qualitative research, largely in the health field, having researched and published numerous reports on a wide range of health subjects including smoking, diet and exercise, women's health, diabetes and, more recently, issues affecting mental wellbeing in later life. Her clients include organisations in both the public and private sectors. She developed the training side of her business over the past 11 years, responding to needs identified in research projects.

Jan Young

Jan has a background in senior management in publishing and the private sector. She set up Maxim Associates in 1995 to specialise in people and business development and performance improvement. She has extensive experience of training and facilitating across all sectors and industries, including the health sector.

Both Yvonne and Jan have substantial experience in training and consultancy, specialising in communications skills and coaching and business mentoring. They provide clients with tailor-made support programmes, including carrying out surveys to analyse strategic and training needs, designing and developing needs-based training, and delivering and facilitating training.
